Q STATION

Manly's Q Station Retreat on Sydney Harbour has become one of the city's most successful heritage sites, combining stylish accommodation with spectacular views and a fascinating history. Preserved within 30 acres of the Sydney Harbour National Park at North Head, Q Station occupies the site of Australia's first and longest running quarantine station. Carefully restored and sympathetically adapted, Q Station opened for guests and day visitors in 2008. Q Station offers luxury accommodation, conference facilities, restaurants and a popular program of tours and activities. Q Station location is among the most dramatic in Sydney – secluded in a sandy cove beside native bushland and towering cliffs, with views spanning the broadest reaches of the harbour from the city to the seaside suburb of Manly. It takes 35 minutes to reach from the city centre.

Garden View Room (2 people) AUD150.00 per night
